

“Peace, Peace; when there is no Peace”

“All authority is given unto Me in heaven and in earth.”

“We will not have this man to reign over us. Crucify Him!”

“He that is not with Me is against Me.”

Neutrality in Christianity is impossible. Christ Himself will not permit it. The enemies of Christ will not permit it. No Man's Land, and the fogs that hang over it, vanish when hand to hand fighting is forced by the contending powers. The battle is on!

How well we all know this! Yet we turn complacently over and dream again; dream of being neutral with regard to the predominant and all inclusive issue of the hour; of our nation's neutrality, while loud the challenge rings, "He that is not with Me is against Me." It is the challenge of the KING OF KINGS, who ruleth in the kingdom of men, Governor among the nations.

By human philosophy and science we thought we had created a spiritual vacuum where the dark sea of evil and the air of light and life and love are wont to meet, so there should be no more hurricane nor tempest. But real winds and waves never yet were stilled but by the word of Him who walks with the sea beneath His feet.

We dreamed that our dream was true. But in the world of reality the laws of God are operative, whether any other wills it or no; and Christ is King, whether we will have Him to reign over us or not. Calling His laws Laws of Nature may anesthetize conscience but will not stay the oncoming forces of His sovereign and righteous judgment.

Shall we sleep until all our children come home atheists, or nature worshippers, from Christless schools? Christless, forsooth, because every department of our government must be Christless so long as the Constitution remains as it is.

Shall we sleep until all moral law is stricken from our statute books? Stricken out because there is no support for it in the Constitution, which has no Bible, no Christ.

Shall we sleep until "the red conspiracy" has gathered enough fury to overthrow Government, Church, and Home? Is there anything in the Constitution to stop the infernal cry, "No God, No Christ, No Bible! Let them take who have the power; Let them keep who can!"

Such a cry was not even whispered at first. No mention of God, of Christ, of the Bible, merely meant, no devil, no anti-Christ, no anarchism; so we fondly supposed when we attempted the impossible; when we accepted reciprocity with hell.

The enemies of Christ will not dream come true. Christ will not permit it. "Who is not with Me is against Me."
